Hello,

I’m Shan, a designer.

Based in General Trias. I specialize in designing experiences with a focus on craft and design systems. In my free time, I enjoy working out, scrolling through pinterest, and making a nice cup of coffee.

Currently in the process of building my full design portfolio. In this mini portfolio of mine, you’ll see what I’ve been building so far.

Feel free to explore my work!

Ethiopian Yirgacheffe

Medium Light

In case you're curious...

Origin: Southern Ethiopia
Taste: Light, floral, sweet
Best Brew: Pour-over

Information

Ethiopian Yirgacheffe originates from the high-altitude Sidama zone of southern Ethiopia (1,700–2,200 meters), where slow bean development yields dense coffee packed with complex sugars and vibrant acidity. Known for its clean, tea-like body, its flavor depends on how it is processed: washed beans offer crisp, floral notes of jasmine, lemon zest, and bergamot, while natural-processed beans deliver a sweeter, fruit-forward cup featuring rich blueberry, strawberry, and chocolate undertones.

To best capture these delicate aromatics, clarity-focused brew methods like pour-over (Hario V60 or Chemex) are ideal, using a 1:15 to 1:16 ratio with medium-fine coffee and water around 90–93°C. Alternatively, an AeroPress provides a sweet, controlled extraction with minimal bitterness, while a coarse-grind French Press steep highlights the heavier body and intense berry notes of naturally processed beans.
